Advice for Enjoying Christmas Festivities while Staying Safe

We wanted to share some useful graphics with you, which contain helpful advice and recommendations for minimising the risk of Coronavirus while we start to enjoy the seasonal festivities. This is an important and treasured time of year for many of us but we must all remain mindful that the threat from Coronavirus is sadly still very real.

The graphics are attached, please share with your families and friends and display on site as required.

Employee Testimonial of Coronavirus

Our global H&S colleagues have shared a short video with us, featuring an employee testimonial from Francisco, who has worked for the company for 27 years. Francisco and his family all caught Coronavirus earlier in the year, and he ended up in intensive care because of the severity of his symptoms.

These testimonials all remind us of the need to do what we can to prevent spread of the virus, and consider the impact Coronavirus can have on an individual and their families.

Changes to Travel Corridors

For any employees preparing to make overseas trips during the holidays, please continue to remain aware of the changes to travel corridors. Countries are still being added and withdrawn from the quarantine list of a weekly basis; last week, the Canary Islands were removed meaning that anyone returning from these locations will need to self-isolate for ten days (note, this is the new length of time required after it decreased from a two-week quarantine). You can find out more about travel corridors here.
